Providing Nutritious Food for School Children: A Fundamental Component of Human Capital Investment

Commitments of the Government of Indonesia

6th Version (updated 15 September 16.45)

Indonesia recognises that access to healthy and nutritious food is essential to transforming the local food system and achieving the Sustainable Development Goals while achieving the Indonesia Golden Vision 2045. We, therefore, pledge to guarantee equitable, inclusive, and sustainable access to healthy and nutritious meals, ensuring that no one is left behind.

We commit to the provision of nutritious food for pregnant women, breastfeeding mothers, children under five, and school children in the form of the Free Nutrition Meal Program. This initiative is a cornerstone in the fight against hunger, poverty, and malnutrition through the food system transformation.

To this end, Indonesia commits to:

- Implement strategy under the National Medium Term Development Plan for 2025–2029 for providing nutritious meals and strengthening its supporting ecosystem.
- Develop a legal framework to support effective governance and long-term sustainability of the program.

- Strengthen institutional capacity within the National Nutrition Agency to ensure accountable, efficient, and sustainable implementation.
- Mobilise resources to ensure program sustainability and strengthen its ecosystem.
- Foster multisector collaboration in a coordinated manner between government agencies, development partners, academia, and civil society.
- Promote evidence-based policy making and real-time stakeholder input through integrated digital systems, research consortia, and the Centre of Excellence for National Nutrition Fulfilment.

The program incorporates nutrition education, food diversity, Water, Sanitation, and Hygiene (WASH) standards, school-based health interventions, and the direct involvement of small-scale farmers, cooperatives, and micro, small, and medium enterprises to ensure sustainable food systems and strengthen local economies.

Indonesia stands ready to collaborate with international partners to promote access to health services, nutrition, and food, thereby nurturing the development of future generations of leaders.
